Konaseema
The New Backwaters Destination of Incredible India
Admire the Emerald Green Godavari Delta

Andhra Pradesh has many exotic coastal destinations which offer the avid nature traveler memories to cherish forever. One such location is the backwaters of River Godavari, known as Konaseema. Konaseema lies in the delta of the river Godavari. This region between the Gautami and the Vashishta tributaries of the Godavari and the Bay of Bengal, forms a verdant triangle of coconut groves and paddy fields. The mighty river Godavari is the heart of Konaseema and everything here revolves around it from lifestyle to religion to literature and industry. The river awakens with the sweet ringing of temple bells and the prayers of men and women who bathe and worship on its banks at dawn. Nothing seems to stand in the way as the river rushes into canals, feeds fishermen, spreads prosperity and is even said to cleanse the sins of the multitudes that bathe in it. Gliding along these waterways and enchanting landscapes, is truly one of the most enjoyable and hassle free ways to discover some exotic riverside destinations.
Cruise the backwaters of Charming Konaseema

Konaseema brings to the mind the canvas of a master painter. It is a memorable experience to cruise down the river and discover the excitement of riverside life, gliding past temple towns and charming rural habitats.

Cruises include night stay, delicious meals, and trained attendants to look after your every need. Andhra Pradesh Tourism offers luxury launches, with 2 bedrooms that accommodate 2 adults and 2 children, and are well furnished with catering and service aboard.

Getting there: Air: Nearest Airport Rajahmundry (69km). Rail: Nearest Railway Station is Narasapur. Road: Amalapuram bus depot is a major hub in Konaseema region/Buses and Taxis are available.
Antarvedi

Antarvedi, located in the lush and lovely East Godavari District, is the sacred confluence where the Vashishta Godavari, a tributary of the Godavari merges into the Bay of Bengal. There is a famous and much revered temple of Lord Lakshminarasimha Swamy at Antarvedi facing the Vashishta Godavari. It is an incredibly beautiful natural spot and a launch pad allows visitors to land on the small island at the other side of the Godavari River from where, one can reach the convergence point of the river and the ocean. The picturesque Antarvedi Lighthouse stands on the serene beach and from atop the lighthouse, you are treated to a breathtaking view of the surroundings and this is where the sighing Godavari finally reaches the sea.
Sri Lakshmi Narasimha Swamy Temple
Antarvedi

The temple town of Antarvedi is a short drive from Dindi, in the East Godavari District. It is at the point where the tributary of river Godavari, the Vashista, enters the Bay of Bengal. Nestled amidst lush greenery, the legend goes that Antarvedi is the spot where Sage Vashista consecrated the shrine in honour of Lord Narasimha. The first temple is said to have been built in the 15th or 16th centuries. The current edifice was completed in 1923. The temple is designed so, that on the day of Ratha Saptami (in Jan-Feb) the rays of the setting sun fall directly on the feet of the deity. The Godavari joining the sea or ‘sangam’ is clearly visible here.

Getting there: Air: Rajahmundry Airport (97km). Rail: Narsapur Railway Station (22 km). Road: There are frequent buses from nearby towns, Razole, Amalapuram, Palakkollu and Bheemavaram.
Adurru is located on the western bank of the Vainateya branch of Godavari river which is around 9.5 km from sea. The place is famous for a mound which the local people call ‘Dubaraju Gudi’. Excavations carried out in the year 1953 brought to surface a Mahastupa which measures 17 feet in diameter built like a wheel. A raised platform surrounds it all around. The Buddhist remnants are datable to the 3rd century A.D. The fact that a Buddhist site of such importance was found in the heart of the East Godavari belt, is itself a rare and intriguing fact.

Ryali

Located about 40 Km from Rajahmundry, it is an enchanting place situated between the rivers Vashista and Gautami. The famous temple of Jagan Mohini Kesava Swamy is located here with its exquisite idol, made of black stone. This shrine is itself the form of Sri Maha Vishnu, with the idol of Sree Kesava Swamy, “Sri Mahavishnu” on front side and Jagan Mohini on the back side. A major highlight is the flow of Ganga waters from the feet of Sri Maha Vishnu. The shrine is also referred to as “Swayambhu” and devotees who visit the shrine believe that the shrine is not man made but a creation of the Lord himself.

Hope Island

Hope Island is a narrow stretch of sandy formation in the mighty Bay of Bengal which was responsible for the formation of the Bay of Kakinada. This enchanting island was formed during the last 200 years by the sand drifting from the tributary of Godavari River.

The island presents a beautiful view with backwaters on one side and sandy beaches on the side facing the Bay of Bengal. The northern part of the island is called the “Godavari point” which overlooks the entry point into the Bay of Kakinada and the Kakinada harbor. Hope Island protects the city of Kakinada from the strong cyclone/tidal waves coming from the Bay of Bengal and offers shelter to ships which berth at anchor in the bay making it one of the safest natural harbours on the east coast of India.
Be Blessed by performing a devotional fast

Sri Veera Venkata Satyanarayana Swamy Temple
Annavaram

Situated on the banks of the river Pampa, the Sri Veera Venkata Satyanarayana Swamy temple at Annavaram is one of the most popular temples in north coastal Andhra. The temple resembles a chariot on four wheels. The annual temple festival is in May and lakhs of devotees throng the small town. At least a lakh ‘vratams’ are performed at the temple every year by devotees. It is believed that one’s wishes would come true if a ‘vrata’ (fasting) is performed here. The main festivals celebrated here are Bheeshma Ekadasi, Kalyanotsavam and Vysaka Ekadasi.

Tourist attractions near Konaseema
Papikondalu

Another experience not to be missed is the cruise down river Godavari amid the breathtakingly beautiful and scenic Papi Hills or ‘Papikondalu’. These hills are at a distance of 50 km down the river from Rajahmundry. This range is part of the Eastern Ghats where the mighty river Godavari narrowing and passing with twists and turns along the Papi Hills is every visitor’s delight. The entire Hill range is covered with tropical forests and rain forests. With its emerald-green dense forests and magnificent waterfalls, it makes one gasp in awe-inspiring wonder. Papikondalu is the place where the width of the Godavari is the narrowest. When the boat cruises through the narrow width and emerges on the other side, it is the most glorious moment of the trip. The boat ride leads one past lush countryside, tiny farm plots, emerald green landscape dotted with tribal habitations all blending naturally with the deep river...to make it a magical place.

The Godavari Arch Bridge

This bridge is a marvel of engineering and is one of the longest bowstring arch girder bridges in Asia. It is the latest of the three bridges that span the river Godavari near the city of Rajahmundry. It is a recognized landmark of Rajahmundry and it is often used as a symbol to represent Rajahmundry in art, media and culture. This is perhaps one of its kind in the world where this type of construction i.e. bowstring arch girder has been used to span the extremely long distance of 97.55 metres or more than 320 feet. Construction on the bridge began in 1991 and lasted till 1997. It was commissioned for passenger traffic in March 1997 and became fully operational for running trains by the Indian Railways from 2003. The bridge is located in two channels, the Kovvur channel and the Rajahmundry channel, and hence the bridge is also known as the Kovvur-Rajahmundry Bridge.

What to Eat

Konaseema has been praised as a land of plenty and prosperity and the richness of the region is reflected in its cuisine. The fertile land gives scope to cultivate a vast variety of vegetables which are famous for their fresh and flavorsome taste. People use them generously in every preparation right from dals to chutneys with delightfully tasty combinations. Chinta Chiguru Pappu is a Konaseema special dal (cooked lentils) speciality which is made of fresh green tender leaves of the chinta (Tamarind) tree. A tempering of garlic, asafoetida mustard and fenugreek seeds is usually added for additional aroma and flavor. An abundance of cashew nuts grows in the Konaseema Region. A local delicacy comprises whole cashew fruits cooked in a rich gravy of onions, tomatoes and drumsticks or fresh brinjal (eggplant). A delicacy available only in Konaseema is the conical steamed idli or “Pottakkalu”. These pyramid shaped idlis steamed in jackfruit leaf baskets are made only in Ambajipeta village.

For the non-vegetarians, a feast awaits. Pulasa Fish a rare seasonal fish found only in some parts of the Godavari backwaters and considered a delicacy in the region. As a local saying goes “Pulasa” must be had in your lifetime even if it means that you have to sell off your valuables, even your gold chains. Cooked in a rich tangy sauce or ‘Pulusu’ Pulasa is very expensive and a single fish could cost you a few thousand rupees. It is said that when Pulasa is being cooked in a house everybody on the street can identify a house where it is being prepared by its rich distinctive aroma. Pulasa is available during August and September and can be advance ordered and custom cooked for you in some local restaurants. ‘Peethala vepudu’ or Crab Fry, ‘Chepala Pulusu’ or Fish in sour gravy, and ‘Rouyala Iguru’, a thick prawn curry, tingle your palate with their taste. All these are of course accompanied by rice. But surprisingly the pot bryyanis or ‘Kunda Biryani’, of Ravulapalem, vie with the Hyderabadi counterpart in their tantalizing taste. Try it for the culinary delight. Dals, pickles and the entire range of snacks like dosas, upma, persarattu and idli are the ubiquitous favorites but the delicious jack fruit curry and brinjals cooked with cashew fruit are dishes that will have you craving for more. For the sweet tooth there are dry fruit crepes or ‘poothatrekulu’, ‘madatha kajas’ from Athreyapuram, ‘Palakova’ or ‘peda’ from Rajahmundry and the very popular mango jelly or ‘maamidi taandri’. In all, Konaseema offers a culinary platter that is a gourmet’s delight.
Festivals and Culture

Konaseema has its own rich culture of festivities and celebrations and they are colorful and entrancingly different. Almost all of 150 villages of Konaseema celebrate Sankranthi and Kanuma festivals in January with aplomb. Large processions with ‘Prabhas’ or high decorated banners on poles are paraded throughout every town and village, uniting them in religious rejoicing. Indigenous dance forms of Konaseema that are vibrant yet rarely see elsewhere are the vigorous, energetic ‘Veeranatyam’, reminiscent of Lord Shiva’s cosmic dance accompanied by tridents, bells and drums, then the gentle persuasive ‘Vilasini Natyam’ of the ‘devadasis’ or temple dancers. These vanishing arts are presently being given a fillip to regain their past glory.
Konaseema has rich natural resources and creative output too, and one can take back a treasured souvenir from the repertoire of crafts. There are the ‘Tholu Bommalu’ or leather puppets that are colorful and decorative or one can also prefer to purchase a mask of the ‘Butta Bommalu’ dancers...each one a unique piece. Then there is the world famous Narsapur Lace and you can have your pick from a mindboggling variety. Yet another immensely popular product from this region are the gorgeous silk sarees from Uppada, coveted across the country and the world for their rare ‘jamdhani’ technique of weaving. Any of these could make great souvenirs which you will treasure.
